Base Ball.

Mechanic Falls H. S.; Paris High School.

The most exciting and interesting game that has been played at the South Paris high school grounds was played Saturday afternoon between the Mechanic Falls and Paris high school teams, resulting in a score of 10 to 5 in favor of Mechanic Falls.

As will be seen by the score by innings Paris led up to the seventh inning. Sumner pitched a fine ball up to that inning, but in this inning he weakened, allowing two men to walk, hit another batter and three Mechanic Falls batters singled in succession. This with Wheeler's error gave Mechanic Falls 5 runs. The inning was brought to a close by a pretty double play, Stowell and Wheeler.

After the seventh inning Paris tried hard to even up the score and in both the 7th and 8th innings had men on second and third with only one man out but could not score.

Although the team from Mechanic Falls played under the name of Mechanic Falls High school, it was admitted to be more or less of a local organization and the pitcher was not a member of the high school.

The Paris team played a good game. The features for them were the throwing of G. Clark, the all round work of Titcomb and a throw by L. Clark from right field to the plate which caught a man trying to score from third. For Mechanic Falls the work of Wescott and a fine back hand catch by Bridge were the features.

Gould had the misfortune to break the little finger of his right hand in the game, and besides this the team which he drove proved to be balky and caused him a good deal of trouble. They bothered several times going over and on the return were still worse. The girls who were in the team got onto one of the other teams and some of the boys led the horses a part of the way home leaving the wagon behind. It was about eleven o'clock when some of them reached home.

High Praise for Markmanship.

Corporal George T. Tubbs' term of enlistment in the National Guard, State of Maine, expired a short time ago, and owing to his business that does not give him the time, he concluded not to re-enlist. He has received this very complimentary personal letter:

Portland, May 10, 1906.

Mr. George T. Tubbs, Norway, Maine.

MY DEAR SIR: I should be very glad to have the assurance from you that will continue in the National Guard service which you have so signally honored in small arms practice.

I rely more on your good eye and better nerve than I can readily explain in a letter. It is given to but comparitively few to make the record that you have and I am sure that it must be a source of pride to yourself and your family. I have taken up the matter with Gen. Farnham and he believes with me that Corporal George T. Tubbs of Co. D is one of the men that the State of Maine cannot spare from its National Guard.

In view of all that President Roosevelt has said in eulogy of rifle shooting, you must realize that no higher honor can come to a National Guardsman in time of peace than to be among the great military marksmen of a State and nation.

This year's trip to Wakefield will give you an opportunity to compete for many individual prizes and it is my opinion that the men who win out over you—if they do—will realize that they have been traveling a very swift clip.

Another year we may get the trip to the National meet again and should be greatly disappointed if the State Team coach were obliged to hunt up a new shooting partner. You will remember that Gen. Hall admitted that the scores which you and Stiles were putting up on that windy 200-yard range were well worth waiting for!

I sincerely hope that you have made or will make up your mind to continue in the service. It needs you very much.

Hoping that I may receive from you a favorable reply, I beg to remain,

Respectfully yours,
ELLIOTT C. DILL,
Colonel, Inspector-General of Rifle Practice.

Mrs. Amos Austin of Rumford and Mrs. Cora Ripley of West Paris, with their mother, Mrs. Sarah Godwin of Rumford, visited their sister, Mrs. Clara Chase, last week.

John Lindley, clerk at F. A. Shurtleff's & Co's, is away on a two weeks' vacation. On his return he will go to Paris Hill to open the store which they run there through the summer.

A pile of grain and wreckage at the old grist mill site, just about under the main entrance of the old mill, is still smoking as steadily as it has all the time since the fire nearly a month ago.

AN OLD MAN'S TRIBUTE.

An Ohio Fruit Raiser, 78 Years Old, Cured of a Terrible Case After Ten Years of Suffering.

When suffering daily torture
From backache, rheumatic pain,
Any ill of kidneys or bladder,
Turn to Doan's Kidney Pills.
A cure endorsed by thousands.
Read an old man's tribute.

Sidney Justus, fruit dealer, of Mentor, Ohio, says: "I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills of a severe case of kidney trouble of eight or ten years' standing. I suffered the most severe backache and other pains in the region of the kidneys. These were especially severe when stooping to lift anything, and often I could hardly straighten my back. The aching was bad in the daytime, but just as bad at night, and I was always lame in the morning. I was bothered with rheumatic pains and dropsical swelling of the feet. The urinary passages were painful, and the secretions were discolored and so free that often I had to rise at night. I felt tired all day. Half a box served to relieve me, and three boxes effected a permanent cure."

SIDNEY JUSTUS.

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Justus will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Kindness.

If you've a chance to do a kindness,
You better "strike a gait,"
To embrace the opportunity
Before it is too late;
For when we get to Heaven,
As we all shall some fine day,
We'll not need to be forgiven
For our kindness on the way.
When we take our acts of kindness,
And we count them one by one,
And write them to our credit,
'Twill be anything but fun
To some of us, I'll warrant,
As we search the rubbish o'er
That comprised our life experience,
It will make us rather sore.
When Death shall lift the curtain,
And the scales begin to fall
From our eyes, I'm very certain
We shall some of us feel small;
For we can't erase the record,
Nor the consequences dodge,
And you'll blush to see your meanness,
Read by all, and want "a lodge
In some vast wilderness," alone
With all your guilt and shame,
The crookedness you did by stealth,
You'll "blush to find it flame;"
So if you have a chance to do
A kind unselfish act,
Better do it, count it to the good,
You'll need it for a fact.

CORA M. W. GREENLEAF.

Maine's Bloodless War.

Benjamin Maxim of South Paris, at the age of 91 years, and William Andrews of Rumford, 87 years of age, are probably the only surviving veterans of the "Aroostook War" in this section.

Mr. Maxim is in fairly good health with all his faculties well preserved, and is frequently seen on the street. A company of artillery was drafted for the war from three companies then situated in Brownfield, Turner and Paris. One commissioned officer was taken from each of the three companies, and Mr. Maxim, who was at that time second lieutenant of the Paris company, became second lieutenant of the drafted company. He went to Augusta and remained there a while, but not till the close of the war, if the three weeks' term might be so called. He was taken sick while there, and upon examination by the surgeon was pronounced not in condition for military service at that time. He was accordingly discharged and sent home. He subsequently served as captain of the Paris artillery company.

William C. Libby, who died at South Paris, April 27, at the age of 86 years, was another veteran of this war. Mr. Libby was living in Albany at the time, and was ordered to Waterford Flat with the other enrolled men in the militia organization to which he belonged, to stand a draft. Twenty-two men were drafted at that time, but the number was subsequently reduced to sixteen. Mr. Libby left home early in March, 1839, on his nineteenth birthday, and was taken by team to Augusta, where with other soldiers he was quartered at the Eagle Hotel. Here he remained for three weeks and a day, when the war cloud having disappeared, the soldiers were discharged and he returned home.

In this generation we can afford to make the Aroostook War something of a joke, but at the beginning of it there was no joke about it. As is generally known, the trouble arose over a dispute regarding the boundary between Maine and New Brunswick, Canadian lumbermen having cut on the disputed territory. No blood was shed, but the Maine land agent was captured by the trespassers, and bloodshed at one time seemed imminent.

The apparent seriousness of the situation may be judged from the fact that the Maine legislature, then a body having much less money to spend than those of the present day, appropriated $800,000 to defend the public lands, and the governor called out 10,000 militia, and Congress, when the matter was laid before it, appropriated ten million dollars, a large sum for those days, to meet the probable expenses, and authorized the President to raise fifty thousand volunteers if necessary. Gen. Scott and his staff were sent to Augusta, and their arrival added to the warlike appearance of the situation.

When the matter got to the attention of those having full authority, a basis of settlement was quickly arranged, a process which in these days of electrical communication would probably take not over two days, and the war was over and the soldiers went home, though it was not until three years later that the treaty definitely fixing the boundary was finally ratified.

Dead Man Identified.

The body of the man who was found in a dying condition in the shallow water near Thompsons point, Tuesday morning, has been identified by his brother, H. Walsh of Portland as that of Patrick H. Walsh of Hiram. The dead man is about 70 years of age and is unmarried. He was a cooper by trade and has worked at his trade in and about Hiram for a great many years. For a number of years he has worked for A. & P. B. Young at Hiram making shooks but he had not been employed by them for over a year. It was stated at Hiram that the past year he had been at work for a Mr. Sanborn of Baldwin.

This is the season when the sheep yields up her wool for the good of humanity.

"The State of Maine stands without a peer today," says a man who is in a position to know, "and it is certain that with its wealth and natural advantages, together with the giant strides that it has made within the past five years, it will not be many years before farms will not be for sale, save on rare occasions, in our State. I am an enthusiast on the subject of Maine farms, and I'll tell you in as few words as possible, just why my enthusiasm is justified, and of the lasting quality.

"There are several cardinal principles in the claims of Maine, that completely eclipse the claims forwarded by our Western sister states. For convenience of locality, climate, rich soil and modern conveniences, no state can hold a proverbial candle to the Pine Tree State. It is only in the most remote sections, far into the heart of of the woodlands, that a rural free delivery postoffice carrier does not make his rounds, daily, and as faithfully as the sun itself. It is in little less remote regions that the farmer is not connected with his neighbors and the surrounding cities and town by a rural telephone line, for the farmer's lines are now nearly as frequent as the rural free delivery routes. There is not a farmhouse in ten that does not sport in its pleasant "sitting-room," a fine piano, or at least a costly organ, and it is indeed a rare instance that a Maine farmer cannot ride to church, or to the county seat in his fine buggy, with his sleek, fat horses.

"It is conceded in Eastern and Western markets that Maine produce leads the world for excellence, variety and quantity. Who in all America has not heard of Aroostook potatoes? It is this potato industry, if it may be called an industry, that makes that big county one of the most prosperous in all America, and where in one year the great sum of $4,000,000 was cleared from the output of common everyday "spuds." It is not generally known that the town shipping more eggs annually than any other town or city in America is the little town of Waldoboro, where in 1905, over 500,000 dozens of eggs were shipped away to the big cities.

"The social advantages of our State, too, are butter than those enjoyed by most states. There is a powerful State Grange that has a thriving branch organization in every quarter of the State; and a membership of 50,000; there is a pretty little white church standing on nearly every four corners, and the public school system as extended into the rural districts is not equalled by any state outside of New England, and it is surpassed by none of our nearer neighbors. There are secret orders and societies that furnish diversion to the fathers and husbands, and there are, too, societies for the women-folks. It is a pleasant thing to notice that the young men and women, sturdy children of a sturdy State, are not showing the inclination to to leave the old home and wander into the big cities, as was the case a decade ago. It must be admitted that it is a Maine-born people who are furnishing the business and professional backbone in many of our big Eastern and Western cities today, but the young folks are showing more interest in their own home State, now-a-days, and they are learning to be useful citizens at home, and the State is the richer for it.

"Next to hay and potatoes, the greatest product that may be mentioned is the sweet corn that has spread the fame of our fair State in other countries, and under other flags. In the State there are 72 sweet corn canning factories, worth $500,000, with a yearly output of 250,000,000 cans, and Maine ranks 4th among the states of the Union in this industry.

"In quality, Maine sweet corn is conceded to be superior and it demands a somewhat higher price. The value at wholesale prices of one year's crop is over $1,500,000. The industry at the present time is one of the most beneficent in the State. The factories are scattered over the whole State with the exception of Aroostook county, where the season is not long enough, usually, to mature corn. In the central and western part of the State, especially, there is generally a corn factory within a few miles of most every farmer, where he can find a ready cash market for all the sweet corn he can raise, at 2 cts. a pound.

"Maine apples are shipped everywhere, even as far west as Colorado, and they are given the preference in the world's greatest apple market—Liverpool. The apple buyers come right to the farmer's door.

"Ask any cattleman at the Brighton, Mass. market where the best beef and finest dairy cows come from, and he will answer, "Maine." Every town has its local cattle buyer.

"Cream is bought at the door of farms by some of the oldest and most successful creamery companies.

"The help problem is, as it always must be, a vexatious one, and is the one serious problem for the farmer to meet. The improved farming implements to a certain degree solve this.

"The farming industry in Maine has increased a hundred-fold in the past five years, and 1905 was the greatest year that Maine ever knew, with the greatest host of strangers and new and welcome strangers within her gates.

The Man Who Was Too Good.

The man whose religion I most doubted when I was a boy, was the man who wouldn't let me go out Sunday and shoot a bear that was hard and fast in a steel trap just back of the barn. He even took my gun away for fear that I might attempt it on Sunday. He was too good—that man.

The bear had been eating the sweet corn just back of the house and in order to get at it he had broken down a part of the fence. Here we set a bear trap and caught him early Sunday morning. Monday the bear was killed—'twas wicked to do it on Sunday.

Well, everything went as slick as a whistle in that family till just two weeks later to a day, and it was Sunday again. Breakfast was over and we were having a fine chat, when—phew!—up from the cellar came the awfullest smell of aqua skunk that ever you or anybody else ever had paralyze them. We all jumped up, peeked through the cellar doorway, and through the air already blue we spied the "critter."

We were as near him as we cared to be. He held the key to the situation, as it were, but judging from the smell he had used the key to good advantage; opened the door and let the badness out. It truly was a trying situation for the good man of the house. The question arose in his mind, should the skunk, like the bear, remain unkilled until Monday morning, exercising his own ill-smelling will, or the Sabbath be broken.

It was at last decided to be a case of necessity, so slowly loading the old "muzzle-loader"—every thrust of the ramrod seeming a sin—the old gentleman capped, cocked and aimed the old blunderbuss and let drive. Removing the body and trying to air out the cellar, house and everything in it occupied the rest of the day. Three years later I visited the house again, and going into the cellar I smelled skunk. Whether or not it was the skunk, I have never determined satisfactorily to myself.

Such a thing as a weakling is hardly known in Japan. The wonderful endurance of the Japanese soldiers and sailors in the recent war has been the marvel of all nations. Both men and women are well, happy and strong.

The reason for this, so careful investigators tell us, is that the Japanese from childhood up know how to keep well through care of the digestive system. If they have trouble with indigestion, heartburn, wind on the stomach, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, headaches, rheumatic pains, back-aches, or any of the other troubles caused by a weak stomach, they treat themselves with some of the principal remedies that compose Mi-o-na, a stomach remedy that has already a large sale in Norway at Noyes Drug Store.

So uniformly successful has the remedy been in curing all stomach troubles where it is used in accordance with the simple directions given with each box, that Noyes Drug Store give a signed guarantee with every 50 cent package to refund the money if Mi-o-na fails to benefit.

They take all the risk. If you have any stomach weakness, are nervous or fear that some articles of food will cause trouble and indigestion, here's the opportunity to get well without risking a cent. Those who use Mi-o-na are able to eat anything digestible without fear ill results.

The Evolution of the Rifle.

Having always been very fond of a rifle, and of looking up facts concerning rifles and ammunition, I have here given a little sketch that I think might be termed the evolution of the rifle.

The rifle is a gun which has the inside of the barrel grooved with sprial channels which give the bullet a rotary motion, thus securing great accuracy. The period of invention is not exactly known. In 1381 the city of Augsberg promised, in the war of the free imperial cities against the nobility in Franconia, Swabia and Bavaria, to send 30 rifles to the army. In 1498, fire-arms with rifled barrels were used at a public shooting-match at Leipsic.

As to repeating rifles, Major Ferguson of the British army, invented a repeating rifle with which he armed some of the soldiers; I do not remember just when, but it must have been before, or at the time of the American revolution. I think that the Colt's rifle with revolving cylinder was the first repeating rifle made in the United States. The magazine of the Henry rifle, which may be called the forerunner of the Winchester, was a long tube underneath the barrel, and that is the plan on which the most of the repeating rifles in this country, that are used for hunting, are made.

Formerly the spherical bullet was used, but was long ago superceded by the conical bullet, which being heavier, gives it greater power and range. The smooth-bore, as its name indicates, is not grooved, but left as a smooth cylinder. Smooth-bores are used almost entirely for shot now, for a gun that will only shoot with fair accuracy at a hundred yards would be a poor weapon compared with one that will shoot with almost perfect accuracy up to five or six hundred yards, and do good shooting up to a thousand yards or more.

The smooth-bore, carefully loaded, will shoot about as true as a rifle for a short distance, but after that the course of the bullet is rather uncertain. The reason given is this: The bullet on leaving the gun is liable to bear a little harder against one side, or the top or bottom of the barrel, which gives the ball a rotary motion with the axis of rotation at right angles to the course of the bullet. The side of the bullet which is forward meets the most resistance from the air, and so is turned from its course more or less.

It is on the same principle as a curved ball is thrown by a base-ball player. The first step toward the rifle was the gun with straight grooves, made so to better facilitate ramming the bullet down. Later, the grooves were given a slight twist, which greatly increased the accuracy, for it brought the axis of rotation in direct line with the bore instead of at a right angle to it, and as long as the rifle bullet flies true it will keep that direction however much it may fall on account of the attraction of gravitation. Accordingly, in shooting at long range, the bullet will strike in an upward, oblique direction, because the rifle was held in that direction to counteract the force of gravitation.

About 50 or 60 years ago, the grooves in the best rifles generally made a whole turn in a length of 30 inches, but now, the best rifles are given a much quicker twist, and as the twist has been increased the bullets have been made longer in proportion to the caliber, so as to increase the weight, and consequently the range.

A rifle with a slow twist will not carry a long bullet point ahead; it will be apt to strike sidewise. The 38-55, which may be given as a sample of modern black powder rifles, has an 18 inch twist in the Winchester make, and the 32-40, another favorite, has a 16 inch twist. The bullets used in these rifles and other black powder rifles having a quick twist, have a percentage of tin mixed with the lead to make them hard enough to stand the grooves. Cartridges loaded with low-pressure, smokeless powder and metal patched bullet are quite commonly used in black powder rifles, in hunting.

The rifles made for high-pressure, smokeless powder are a new departure. They have a much quicker twist than the black powder rifles. The Krag-Jorgensen has a 10 inch twist. The Lee, (U. S. navy rifle) as made by the Remington Arms Co., makes a turn in 6½ inches. Most of the 30 calibers in this country have a 10 inch twist. The bullets have a jacket of copper plated with tin and filled with lead. Lead bullets hardened with antimony are sometimes used in this class of rifles with a reduced charge of powder, but if a full charge of high-pressure, smokeless is used, the heat generated by the great velocity in passing through the barrel is liable to fuse the bullet, so it is given a copper, or sometimes a nickel jacket.

In bullets of this class, used for hunting large game, the copper jacket does not cover the whole length of the bullet, but leaves the soft lead point projecting a fraction of an inch, which causes it to mushroom, or expand when it strikes, which increases its killing power. The bullets for military use are full metal patched and give far greater penetration because they do not expand.

Biliousness and Constipation.

"For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been to-day had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The effects were simply marvelous. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, purify the stomach, liver and blood, helping the system to do its work naturally. They bring back new life and energy, a bright eye, a clear brow and a happy heart."—Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala. These tablets are for sale by Noyes Drug Store; Shurtleff's, South and West Paris. 20-23

Passing of the Church Spire.

In the old days, when the church was chiefly regarded as a place in which to worship on Sunday, the spire was a perfect, visable symbol of the character of the building. It was a sign of God's house, and as such had its use. Aside from this the spire had a bell and perhaps a clock. Now, how changed! The rapid commercial progress of the era has shown no sentimental regard for homes, churches, or anything else.

The Baptists of late seem to have taken the united move to get away from the spire and all that it means, but they are going to the other extreme. Many of their new churches look like public buildings and some resemble a Cairo mosque. The Methodists, while doing away with the spire, have compromised in many instances in a tower. The Norman and English Gothic, or "perpendicular Gothic," has come into high favor in city churches. The style is at once dignified and full of strength because of its massiveness.

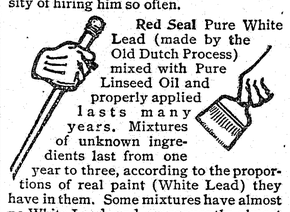
Pennywise on Paint=ing

The cost of the paint, be it good or bad, is the minor portion of a bill for painting. It is the painter's time in putting it on that costs. The outlay for paint is rarely more than a fourth, never more than a third.

A little personal attention to the paint your painter uses will save you the necessity of hiring him so often.



Red Seal Pure White Lead (made by the Old Dutch Process) mixed with Pure Linseed Oil and properly applied lasts many years. Mixtures of unknown ingredients last from one year to three, according to the proportions of real paint (White Lead) they have in them. Some mixtures have almost no White Lead, and consequently almost no value as paint.

Skilled labor and poor material are a most expensive combination. In using Pure White Lead you get full value for the painter's time.

Send for a booklet containing several handsome reproductions of actual houses, offering valuable suggestions for a color scheme in painting your house. A test for paint purity is also given.

Aged 104 Years.

The Remarkable Life of Mrs. Hannah Walker of Poland.

Mrs. Hannah Walker of Poland, the oldest woman in Maine, will be 104 years of age this month.

She has had an eventful life. She was born in a log cabin during the most primitive times. Her father went into the wilderness, and, cutting and burning an acre of hardy oak trees, reared his home. The nearest settlement was five miles away from their one-room cabin, on a bleak mountain-side.

At first it was impossible to turn over the land with the rude wooden plows they used, so sods were dug up and the seeds placed under them. When Mrs. Walker was a little girl her father taught her to count five, that she might go into the fields and drop corn. Those were winters of big blizzards. Often there was 10 feet of snow and roads were tunnells under the drifts to the barn, and from the barn to the spring where the cattle were watered.

The circuit preacher held meetings under the trees. Bears were shot and the skins used for rugs and bed coverings. Wild ducks were shot and the feathers used for pillows. Once Mrs. Walker walked 60 miles, making the journey in three days, to do housework for 50 cents a week.

The Nest in the Boulder.

The Sunday Magazine says:—In a somewhat desolate region near the valley through which runs the brook forming the outlet to Sand pond in Norway, Maine, is a peculiar looking boulder of large dimensions.

On one side is a deep cleft, and a small shelf juts out in such a way that no rain or storm can reach it. On this shelf is a bird's nest made from moss, taken from rocks in the brook.

A citizen owning land in that vicinity tells me that he has annually visited the place in June for over fifty years, and has found either eggs or young birds without a single exception. The nest is renewed every year, and is invariably made of the same material.

More wonderful still is the statement that his father had noted that a bird of peculiar species annually built its nest and reared its young in the same place as far back as 1812.

Now if they can get time to ditch a few feet (rods would be better) beside the road where their letter-box is they would receive the thanks of the letter-carrier and if many others would do the same it would greatly improve the looks of those places for in several such places the mud seems deeper "and more of it" than any where else in the roads.

Colbath escaped from the earthquake and fire in San Francisco, saving a part of her clothing, but losing everything else. She passed three days and three nights in the crowded park with but slight protection from the winds and rain. Since this kind friends near the city have given her shelter. Santa Rosa, her late home and that of her husband and son, Harry, while suffering severely in its business and commercial districts, its dwellings escaped with but little damage, and her own home was not materially injured. Mill at Tuskahola.

A sight worth riding a long ways to see is the immense quantity of pine logs waiting to be sawed into marketable lumber at the little mill at "Tuskahola City" in Bisbeetown. To one riding by it is simply a sea of logs. The trim piles of lumber already stacked attest to the amount of logs which have been worked up this winter by the busy little engine which sends its whistle up and down the valleys and over hills, and is called the Screech Owl by those who live within the radius of its sound.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Drawing in Grades IV to IX.

The pupils in rooms four to nine of the village schools gave exhibitions of their work for the past year in their several rooms. The public were invited to look over their work and it was very creditable. Iva L. McArdle teacher of the eighth grade has taught drawing the past year ably assistedby the teachers in their rooms, Lucy M. Hayes in grade four, Edith S. Harlow in grade five, Edna I. Brown in grade six, Sue M. Wheeler in grade seven and Harriet Abbott in grade nine.

Many of the sketches showed decided talent when it is considered that they have only had instruction in this branch of work one year. The pupils have thoroughly enjoyed the work and take pride in what they have accomplished.

There were sketches in pencil, water colors and wash drawings in black and white. In the winter they work more on conventionalized forms and geometric ornaments or designs. Then there were telling little landscapes and drawings of animal and still life.

In the spring and fall they bring in and sketch things from the fields and woods.

The fruit, flowers and grasses that they sketched and in many cases colored from nature were among the best. One of their favorite studies is to have one of their number pose and then all draw from life. These studies are such good likenesses that the child posing could be readily named. The coloring on the pictures of the Japanese lanterns was bright and well blended.

There were many visitors and the pupils in grade eight had thoughtfully provided little bouquets of May flowers for their guests.

In grades seven and eight the pupils entertained the visitors by singing. The drawing teacher, Miss McArdle visisted the rooms and spoke a short time in each, explaining the different kinds of works and the methods used.

Letter to Freeland Howe.

Norway, Maine.

Dear Sir: Would you like to hear of a 20-year paint?

Mr. James A. O'Neil's house, Henderson, N. C., was painted 20 years ago with Devoe lead-and-zinc, and never painted again till last year; it then looked better than common paint in half that time.

The reason is: Devoe is all paint and true paint; while the common paints are part true and part false. Don't pay to monkey with paint.

And Devoe costs less than any of 'em; not by the gallon, of course; by the house and year. That's how to reckon it. Go by the name. Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOE & Co.

F. P. Stone sells our paint.

Had Been "In the Pie Line."

"Probably this will interest the Norway folks," writes Don C. Seitz to the editor:—

I was at Atlantic City, May 4th and 5th, at the annual dinner of The American Periodical Publishers Association composed of the magazine makers. I went to breakfast Saturday morning with Mr. Esswein of "Lippencott's," and later was joined by George W. Cable, and Lloyd Osbourne, Robert Louis Stevenson's step-son. The colored waiter told Mr. Cable he could have the menu in a minute. Mr. Cable said, "I do not want any menu; bring me some shirred eggs, some rolls, some coffee and some hot milk. I never use a menu."

I suggested that as he lived in Northampton, he ought to have some pie for breakfast although it was a little south of the "pie line," which runs from Bellows Falls to Portland.

He said, "Speaking of pie, some years ago I was in a little town in Maine—Norway, Maine,"—

I laugh d and said, "My home town."

He said, "A singular thing, to tell a story about an obscure little place, and the man I am talking to hails from it."

I told him a few things about Norway to prove that it was not obscure, and he then said, "It was 30 degrees below zero and I was leaving on the early morning train with one other passenger; I said 'It is pretty fresh this morning.' He said—'You'd think so if you had driven 10 miles, and what's more,' he added, 'you probably had the advantage of a hot breakfast; I did not even have hot coffee, I just went into the pantry and got a piece of cold pie and a glass of cold milk, and this is all I had to ride 10 miles on to catch this train."

I thought perhaps some inhabitant of Waterford had enjoyed the pleasure of the morning chat with the gentleman, and I write this to recall the incident to his memory, if he should happen to see the ADVERTISER.

The Vacant House.

Alone, I cross the threshold, worn,
'Neath moss-grown roof, and moulding wall,
In musty rooms, so cavern like,
Where gloomy silence broods o'er all.

Through the old house now damp and chill,
Many a voice now still, has rung,
Many a smile and many a tear
Cheered, or saddened those lives among.

Some mother here has soothed her child,
Singing her low, sweet lullaby;
Read pleasant rhymes or stories wove,
Some childish mystery to descry.

The dusty stairway that I tread,
The figured walls of olden hue;
This shell so strange and tenantless!
In mystic thought I wander through.

Yon corner where the spider weaves,
Dust covered is each silken thread,
I list! faint echoes come to me
From the empty attic overhead.

But vacant now the house and still,
And yester holds each joy, and tear,
While each to-morrow is shard will prove,
No foot-fall comes, a home to cheer.

From 'neath the rotting eaves and gray,
The sullen bat flits to and fro;
Vacant! ah drear the echo sounds!
And asiant vague shadows come and go.

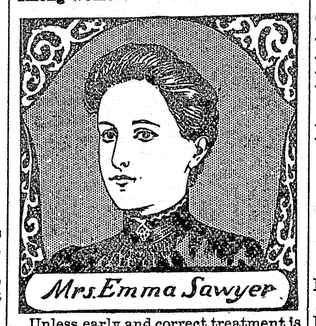
KIDNEY TROUBLES

Increasing Among Women, But Sufferers Need Not Despair

THE BEST ADVICE IS FREE

Of all the diseases known, with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal, and statistics show that this disease is on the increase among women.



Unless early and correct treatment is applied the patient seldom survives when once the disease is fastened upon her. We believe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most efficient treatment for chronic kidney troubles of women, and is the only medicine especially prepared for this purpose.

When a woman is troubled with pain or weight in loins, backache, frequent, painful or scalding urination, swelling of limbs or feet, swelling under the eyes, an uneasy, tired feeling in the region of the kidneys or notices a sediment in the urine, she should lose no time in commencing treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it may be the means of saving her life.

For proof, read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Sawyer.

"I cannot express the terrible suffering I had to endure. A derangement of the female organs developed nervous prostration and a serious kidney trouble. The doctor attended me for a year, but I kept getting worse, until I was unable to do anything, and I made up my mind I could not live. I finally decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a last resort, and I am to-day a well woman. I cannot praise it too highly, and I tell every suffering woman about my case." —Mrs. Emma Sawyer, Conyers, Ga.

Mrs. Pinkham gives free advice to women; address in confidence, Lynn, Mass.

The Success of Lewis Mann.

Few people ever stop to think where clothespins come from, and very few people ever heard of Bryant's Pond. Yet located there is an industry which supplies a large part of the clothespins used in the United States today.

The proprietor of this enterprise is Lewis Mann, who undertook his first venture at Norway in 1871 when but 23 years of age and with a capital of only $400. He leased a disused mill and started in a small way to manufacture clothespins. His machinery was of the most primitive type and his output per week was but a small part of what it now is per day. Two years later he purchased an old chair factory at Snow's Falls, where he moved his machines and operated there for another two years. Then he sold out and moved to West Paris, where he remained six years.

Encouraged by his success he looked about for still another site and hit on Bryant's Pond as a promising location. In 1900 he purchased a large mill there. The next year a boiler explosion in his West Paris factory almost totally destroyed the plant. His engineer was instantly killed. The mill was immediately rebuilt. This mill was again totally destroyed by fire caused by the explosion of a kerosene lamp, in March of the present year, causing a loss of $6000 on which there was no insurance.

Besides the mill at Bryant's Pond there is one at Milton. Mr. Mann is now assisted in the business by his son, Edwin, who is an inventor of ability. Much of the best machinery now used by Mr. Mann is the result of his own inventive genius and that of his son. Mr. Mann's machines turn out 30,000,000 pail handles, and of high grade clothespins they produce more than 50,000 five gross boxes, or 36,000,000 a year.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures in the most distressing cases, and is sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Norway Churches, Their Founders and Pastors.

By C. F. Whitman.
No. 5.
(Universalist.)

Asa Barton, a native of Hanover, Maine, who had opened a book store on Paris Hill in 1821, began three years afterwards the publication of the Oxford Observer. In 1826 he moved the establishment to Norway. This was done in the night time and by ox team. Mr. Barton had a varied career. At different periods of his life, he was a merchant, publisher of a newspaper and lawyer. He possessed considerable literary ability. What his aptitude for trade may have been I know not. As a lawyer his success apparently was not great. He entered the profession late in life and at first settled in Garland but returned to Norway in 1844. His health was poor which seriously affected his success. He died here in 1847, at the age of 51. Asa Barton was by far the ablest writer for the newspapers in his day in the county.

Dr. Asa Danforth was for over fifty years one of the leading physicians in the county. He served one term in the Legislature.

Dr. Jesse Howe, a grandson of the Revolutionary soldiers, Jacob Howe, the post rider, and Asa Dunham, (the latter dying in the service during the War of 1812) practiced medicine in Norway for a quarter of a century.

Benjamin Tucker came to Norway and began the harness making business, the first in the place. His son of the same name succeeded to the business and it has been in the family for over a hundred years. All strong and upright men and respected townsmen, and all with their families have attended the same church.

Horatio G. Cole conducted the carding wool business for many years, and handed it down to his son.

Gen. William Wirt Virgin was one of the best lawyers in the State in his day, Reporter of Decisions, Major General in the old militia, Colonel of the 23d Maine in the War of the Rebellion and Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court.

There are so many of these strong characters that all cannot be mentioned in this sketch but Adna C. and Lucius Denison, both of whom were many years in business here, deserve a passing notice. They were men of sterling qualities and much respected and honored. The former established the paper making business at Mechanic Falls and built up the place. He was the great pillar of the Universalist church in that village while he lived.

And withal this church society has had many able pastors since Thomas Barnes, whose influence from their good works has been felt to this day.

Rev. Henry Hawkins was one of those who has left his impress on this society and also upon the community. He was much interested in education and temperance reform.

Rev. Timothy J. Tenney was not only an able preacher but he possessed literary ability. He was kind and sympathetic, and felt for the poor and distressed as a father for his children. He was also a large contributor to the religious press. In education he was always interested. He assisted in founding an academy at Glover, Vt., when he was settled there. Mr. Tenney is remembered by the older people of all classes in the town with love and reverence. A son is now one of the leading preachers in the denomination.

Rev. Joseph C. Snow was a very eloquent preacher and one of the most popular of the pastors this society has ever had. He possessed literary ability and was in fact one of the best representatives of the scholastic clergymen who ever preached in Norway. Mr. Snow was Chaplain of Colonel Virgin's 23d Regt. in the Civil War.

Rev. John L. Stevens probably had the greatest literary attainments of any clergyman who was ever a resident of Norway. He abandoned the pulpit on account of a catarrhal trouble and went into journalism. With James G. Blaine he made the Kennebec Journal a power in politics in this State. For three years he represented the United States Government at Monttevideo and six years at Stockholm. After his return from Stockholm he wrote a life of Gustavus Adolphus, the national hero of Sweden. Chiefly through his influence the Sandwich Islands were annexed to the United States.

Rev. Nathaniel Gunnison was pastor of the society here from 1865 to 1870. He was undoubtedly the best organizer and financial manager in the history of the society. During his pastorate the church was raised and Concert Hall made underneath it. He was one of the promoters of the Norway Savings Bank and became its first president. Mr. Gunnison took a deep interest in temperance and all matters calculated to improve the condition of society. During the latter part of the Civil War while in charge of a pastorate at Halifax, Nova Scotia, he was United States consul there, serving with marked ability. Had he chosen politics as a profession he would have risen to high station. He died at Waterville, Me., in 1871. His memory will long be cherished by Norway people. One son is a Doctor of Divinity, another a College President and a third is editor of a leading New York journal.

Rev. J. A. Seitz was one of the ablest preachers this society has ever had and excepting John L. Stevens he outranks them all in literary attainments. For some years while in Norway he edited and published "The New Religion." It was in this newspaper office that his son, Don C. who is now the business manager of The New York World, received his start in life.

Rev. Washington W. Hooper was a loveable and companionable man and all who came within the circle of his influence were moved by his noble bearing and upright character. For some ten years he was the State missionary. He recently died, mourned by all who knew him.

Rev. Caroline E. Angell is the only woman who has served as pastor of this society, and the longest in term of service of any, her pastorate having been twenty years. She is an able pastor, an eloquent speaker, and possesses great literary ability. Her personality is striking, her nature lovable and attractive. She has always taken a deep interest in the welfare of the community and in all movements calculated to improve the condition of society. She was from its organization here a leader in the W. C. T. U. society and took part in the temperance meetings and all kindred gatherings. Probably no pastor of this society has so impressed his personality upon the church and the community, and there is none whose influence will be more lasting. She is now settled at Freeport.

Rev. Samuel G. Davis came here a year ago as pastor of the church, and no better clergyman could have been selected as Miss Angell's successor. His health is not good enough to perform the duties of a very large pastorate. Had it been he could not have been secured at the salary this society can afford, and it is very fortunate in obtaining his services and the community in having him in it. The air of Oxford county is beneficial to health, and he finds that the people have ways that are congenial and moral qualities to be commended. He preaches a religion of character, and love, and one that touches the heart and soul, and quickens into activity. The Christ character is made the standard, not for the Sabbath alone, but for every day in the week. Without seeming to lead he is one of the strongest of leaders. He has a manly and noble nature, and no one who becomes acquainted with him can help admiring and loving him. Under his pastorate his church is a great power for good in the community. His life is a living sermon.

A Business Improvement.

L. M. Irish and H. H. Wardwell under the firm name of Irish Bros. & Co., which is a branch of the Irish Bros.' dye-block mill at Buckfield, have been improving and enlarging their plant here. When they purchased the mill of Mrs. Johnson Cushman about two years ago there was but one small building used as a dryer with a capacity of 10,000 feet of lumber. Last year a new dryer was added which would hold 12,000 feet, and this year they have put up another building 20x40, partitioned off to make two dryers with each a capacity of 12,000 feet. This spring a 50-horse power boiler has been put in and the entire plant will be fitted with steam heat. More new machines will also be added.

In the main building a business office was fitted up last year, and the entire mill lighted by electricity from a dynamo located in the building. The blacksmith shop was also fitted up and improved. They now employ seven men but expect to have the number increased to a dozen or more. Formerly only two or three men were employed. Our village people are pleased to see all such business enterprises prosper and wish these stirring young men continued success.

Eye headaches are those which no medicines seem to reach, the dull beadaches which make life miserable, bring wrinkles to the brow and a dull look to the eyes. Nature never intended the eyes to be overworked, but when they have been overworked and taxed beyond their normal strength, then science may show the remedy—glasses. Come here and have your eyeglasses scientifically made as there is much satisfaction in good glasses. Personal attention and examination free. Difficult cases solicited. Prescriptions filled.
